OVERVIEW

Timothy has a busy commercial chancery practice, and accepts instructions across the full range of Chambers' specialisms.

He is comfortable working as sole counsel or as part of a team, and regularly appears unled in both the High Court and County Court.

Before joining Chambers, Timothy took a first in Greats at Merton College, Oxford and stayed to read for an MPhil in Classics, which he obtained with Distinction. He then read Law with 'Senior Status' (i.e. as a second undergraduate degree) at Harris Manchester College, Oxford, graduating top of the Senior Status course. He subsequently completed the Bar Course with Distinction, receiving the Derek Wood QC Prize for the best overall performance at the Inns of Court College of Advocacy.

Together with Professor Robert Hazell (Constitution Unit, UCL), Timothy is co-author of Executive Power: The Prerogative Past, Present and Future (Hart Publishing, 2022). The book examines the prerogative powers of the Crown amid the changing landscape of the British constitution. Thanks to sponsorship by the Canadian SSHRC, the book is now available as an open access resource here.
